

The State of the Kid™

2017

We Asked. Kids Answered.

Each year, our State of the Kid survey asks kids about what it's like to be a kid today. This year, over 2,000 boys and girls ages 6-12 from all over the country shared their thoughts with us. Here's what they had to say.

What do you think is most important to your parents, that you're happy, do well in school, or are kind?

When, if ever, is it OK to be mean or unkind to someone else?

Have you ever seen your parents or other adults acting unkindly or saying mean things to someone else? If so, where?

When you see your parents or other adults being unkind or saying mean things, how do you feel?

When your parents see something mean or unkind happening, what do they usually do?

What do you think it means to "put yourself in another person's shoes"?

Is it more important to be kind or honest?

If you could change one thing in the world, what would you change?
